

Satin Frock for Afternoon Wear

By JULIA BOTTOMLEY

beauty. Unburdened by superfluous trimming details, it achieves distinction through artful drapes and folds and circular treatments.

Just now interest centers about the modish chestnut brown colorings for satin. For her autumn afternoon frock that charming screen actress, Barbara Worth, chooses satin in this very shade. The picture herewith shows Miss Worth gowned to perfection—a study in chestnut brown. Note the exquisite simplicity of this little model. Concerning the lace at throat and wrists, "a touch of lace" for the velvet or satin frock is inevitable this season, according to the dictate of the mode.

At luncheon and afternoon tea the smartest women are wearing dresses of black crepe satin made along conspicuously simple lines. These are frequently developed with slightly bloused lines and side draperies, sometimes caught with a metal ornament.

Not infrequently one glimpses a beige satin frock in the assemblage of society's fairest. A bit of gold in the way of a belt or bracelet and necklace usually shines resplendently forth on either the beige or black satin gown.

The same simplicity of styling which characterizes the satin frock is repeated in the handling of the new simple silks, these, by the way, coming in to divide honors with velvets and satins.

HINTS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Panned chicken is delicious served with current jelly sauce.

A filling for brown bread sandwiches is a layer of cream cheese and one of prepared mustard.

It is not necessary to make ice cream to give the family a "cool treat" for sherbets and ices are good, too.

Hot Lunch for School Children

Serving Hot Lunch Cafeteria Style.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

It has been found that children who must go some distance to school and either carry lunch from home or get part or all of it at school are much better off when at least one hot dish is provided, such as soup or cocoa, or an entire hot meal, usually served cafeteria style. Not only do the children feel better and do better work in the afternoon session when they have had hot food for lunch, but in many instances the food provided at the school is a valuable lesson in food selection. In some instances the preparation of it is turned over to the older girls, so that it becomes a part of their home economics training. In other cases various mothers take turns in coming to the school to prepare the lunch. Still another plan is for the children to bring their own food ready for heating and to appoint several children to help the teacher in doing so.

In practically all cases the children gradually absorb ideas about food selection and preparation, and often this is the entering wedge to a better knowledge of food in the child's home, and to greater interest in the subject of nutrition. The relation between good health and the right food is brought out when the school lunch is properly directed and planned by a group or committee. Cleanly habits of eating are learned, too, and the children are usually better off when lunching in an orderly way under supervision than when left to their own devices.

The United States Department of Agriculture suggests that in communities which do not at present have a hot dish at the school lunch, a group of mothers might get together and see how the matter could be arranged. If the children are to pay for what they get, rather than bring the food, the price charged must be within the reach of all, usually only the cost of materials and fuel.

ORANGE, LEMON SHERBET IS REFRESHING DRINK

Orange or lemon sherbet is easy to make and very refreshing as a sensible dessert. Pure fruit juice should be used in making it. The bureau of home economics gives the recipe below:

Orange Sherbet.
1½ cups orange juice
1½ cups sugar
½ teaspoonful salt
2 cups milk and

Heat one cupful of milk and add the sugar. Stir until the sugar is dissolved. Add the other ingredients (use a freezing mixture of one part salt and four to six parts of ice, and turn the crank of the freezer slowly. After freezing, remove the dasher, pack the freezer with more ice and salt, and let the sherbet stand for an hour to ripen in flavor.

Lemon sherbet may be made in this same way by omitting the orange juice, and using enough lemon juice to give the desired flavor.

Train the Children
Not to Waste Food

Family prejudices about foods may defeat the most earnest efforts to set an economical table. Sensible training when children are little will prevent the formation of many of these prejudices. Even if adults do have faulty food habits, they can often be reasoned out of them.

Get everybody in the family to see the need for economy and to recognize the fact that no good food should be wasted after it once enters the kitchen. The high cost of the table is sometimes due to the fact that some foods are more tempting than others, by convincing the family that there is now such a wide variety of acceptable flavors that each one can be pleased a large part of the time. Show them that in selecting foods in the market you have to be guided by what is available, by what will be different from yesterday's menu, and tomorrow's, too, and most important of all, by what will make up a balanced diet.

Few Years of Poverty in Victor Hugo's Life

Unlike many great writers, Victor Hugo had a happy childhood; was a brilliant pupil, and when he fell in love, at an early age, he did not become dreamy and impractical, but worked harder than ever to achieve success.

His first experience of real tragedy came with the death of his mother. His relationship with her had been unusually intimate and tender. For several years the mother had been estranged from her husband, which had resulted in drawing her closer to her youngest son. Soon after his mother's death his father married the woman who had caused the estrangement.

The elder Hugo had no sympathy with his son's desire to write. He offered him a sufficient allowance if he would give up authorship and devote himself to a career that promised a large income. Hugo indignantly refused, and shared a Paris attic with his cousin. Here he gained the knowledge of poverty that he revealed in "Les Misérables." But he was not as poor as many young geniuses have been, nor did he know poverty for any great length of time. In 1822 he married the girl with whom he had fallen in love when he was seventeen, and this brought a reconciliation with his father—Kansas City Times.

The Bum

An American visitor to London, in his reverence for Francis Thompson's poems, made a pilgrimage recently to the Skitlaw Arms, Kilburn, the "pub" where the author of the "Poet of Heaven" used to sit and dream by the fire in the saloon bar. The pilgrim recalled to Francis Thompson's associations to the landlord of the inn, who had never heard of him.

"Poet!" said Benliffe decisively, "that sort of a customer hanging about doesn't do a house any good."

Celery Fritters With Lamb

With cooler weather one may think again of hotter and richer food than has been served during the warm summer months. Fritters in any form must be served piping hot, and because of the deep fat in which they are fried, they add considerably to the richness of the meal. These celery fritters, for which the bureau of home economics supplies the recipe, would be particularly good with a menu consisting of cold sliced lamb and spinach. A fruit dessert would be good.

2 cups celery, finely cut
1 egg
1½ cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 cup milk
Salt
1 cup oil

Sift together the flour, salt and baking powder, add the beaten egg and milk, then the celery. Fry by spoonfuls in a well-buttered skillet. Drain on absorbent paper, and serve hot.

Clothes for the Stout Woman

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The woman who is somewhat inclined to stoutness, especially if she has white or gray hair, needs to give very careful attention to the selection of her clothes with a view to enhancing her dignity and correcting the appearance of size. She must avoid fussy styles, those crowding the figure horizontally, shiny fabrics, vivid colors, large patterns, tight belts, and the short skirt. In these two illustrations of the same person posed by the United States Department of Agriculture, the desirable dress has long vertical lines from shoulder to hem, made by the flat pleats and the long tie, the plain set-in sleeves, and the correct length of the skirt. The distance of the neckline from the door is appropriate for a woman of heavy build. The material is gray crepe relieved only by the simple groups of buttons and varicolored banding on the collar.

In the other dress there is a mistake in every detail. The dark blue satin is combined with a large figured chiffon. The shiny satin seems to make the figure stouter than it actually is, belting it in at the waist brings out the fullness of the bust and hips need lessly, and interferes with the air making the general impression one of bulkiness. The large puffs known as sleeves are inappropriate on a heavy dress and by wearing the skirt so short, a ridiculous chopped-off appearance is given to the figure.

Mistake in Every Detail of This Outfit

KIDDIE BEDTIME STORY

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

Theresa was ten. She loved stories and there were many stories which she wanted to hear and she had many ideas of the subjects about which she wanted to hear.

But first on her list was Dreamland. She wanted to hear about "dreamland stories of little boys and girls."

Now the Dreamland King heard of this and it made him very happy. "I've been in the Dream business for a good many years," he said, "and I am glad to hear how the customers still want to be served."

"I wouldn't want the Dream business to become too quiet, for though I send out the dreams when the customers are quiet I don't want the business itself to become too quiet.

"Oh, no, I don't want that to happen at all.

"I want to keep the customers happy and satisfied and pleased."

So the Dreamland King was very much pleased about this new customer and the first thing he did was to get hold of Fairy Wondrous Secrets "Fairy Wondrous Secrets," he said, "how are your workers? Are they too busy to help me?"

"Never too busy to help you, Dreamland King," said Fairy Wondrous Secrets.

So the Dreamland King came down from his favorite cloud, where he reclines and rests and sends his beautiful dreams, yes, he came down from Sleepy Cloud and talked to Fairy Wondrous Secrets.

"I'd like some of the finest dreams wrapped up—and I'd like to have some of the wonderful secrets you have to give put in with the dreams."

"I'd like to have some of those secrets of happiness you have in large supply. I'd like some of those secrets of fun and joy and love and affection."

"I'd like lots of your help, you see."

So the Fairy Wondrous Secrets got to work where they kept all the wonderful secrets they had to give.

And they did up the loveliest of packages filled with the happiest and most beautiful of secrets and then the Dreamland King went back to his Sleepy Cloud and sent out the packages by means of the night workers of the Breeze and Wind Company.

Into the rooms of little girls, into the rooms of little boys, went the beautiful secrets and the wonderful dreams.

Oh, the dreams that were there! Dreams of great journeys, dreams of wonderful adventures, dreams of gorgeous gardens, dreams of beautiful music, dreams of fascinating fairies and magical tricks, dreams of gardens filled with flowers, dreams of every thing that any one could imagine.

And the Dreamland King smiled to himself as he heard the report of the night workers of the Breeze and Wind Company as they came back.

They all said the children had looked so happy as the dreams had been sent to them and as the packages of wonderful secrets had been scattered in their rooms.

They had smiled as they slept, so the night workers of the Breeze and Wind Company said.

And the old Dreamland King closed his eyes then and slept, for his great dream of the evening had once more come true.

The dreams that he had sent had been liked and enjoyed and even loved.

The heavy rain of Thursday night and Friday raised the water to a high level, washed the roads and did other minor damage. Communication was entirely cut off by railroad, as no trains ran, and the electric lighting was put out of power for some hours.

There was a narrow escape from drowning when Lewis J. Mann, a boy of 13, crawled out on the dune at J. B. Ham Co.'s mill to watch a floating mass of debris, and the board he was standing on slipped, throwing him off. Luckily he caught and hung by one foot above the scething water where sure death awaited him. Two bystanders, George Flavin and Raymond Haines, stripped off coats and prepared to go to his aid, when Ralph Corliss, a classmate of Lewis in the high school, went suddenly out, grabbed him by one hand and the hair of the head, and raised him to safety. It was an act of bravery worthy of the highest commendation, as young Mann is much heavier than the Corliss boy, and the danger and effort were great.

MIDDLE INTERVALE ROAD

Mr. and Mrs. Ara Burgess and two children and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reno arrived in Bethel by auto Thursday A. M. They were at J. F. Coolidge's during the storm and flood, returning to Worcester Sunday night.

Things became serious at J. F. Coolidge's Saturday morning at 5 o'clock when fire and smoke were seen by Mrs. Coolidge coming out of the ground in two places between the house and the pump house and smoke coming out of the house where the pump is. Trouble was caused by the wire of telephone which was still attached to the house and to a pole where the electric light wires came in contact with it by the storm. Mr. Reno, electrician from Worcester, clipped the wire from the house at once and saved the house.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mrs. Annie Kivinski of 526 1st Avenue, Milwaukee, Wis., writes that she became so weak and run-down that she was not able to do her housework. She saw the name Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the paper and said to her husband, "I will try that medicine and see if it will help me." She says she took six bottles and is feeling much better.

Mrs. Mattie Adams, who lives in Downing Street, Brewton, Ala., writes as follows: "A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and since taking it I feel like a different woman."

With her children grown up, the middle-aged woman finds time to do the things she never had time to do before—read the new books, see the new plays, enjoy her grand-children, take an active part in church and civic affairs. Far from being pushed aside by the younger set, she finds a full, rich life of her own. That is, if her health is good.

Thousands of women past fifty say they owe their vigor and health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and are recommending it to their friends and neighbors.

"Who will drive this car away for $250," read the sign on the dilapidated vehicle in the dealer's window. A man, passed the store, read the sign and entered. "I'll take a chance," he uttered. "Where's the money?"—he asked.

The BABY

Why do so many, many babies of today escape all the little fretful spells and infantile ailments that used to worry mothers through the day, and keep them up half the night?

If you don't know the answer, you haven't discovered pure, harmless Castoria. It is sweet to the taste, and sweet in the little stomach. And its gentle influence seems felt all through the tiny system. Not even a distasteful dose of castor oil does so much good.

Fletcher's Castoria is purely vegetable, so you may give it freely, at first sign of colic, or constipation, or carica. Or those many times when you just don't know what is the matter. For real sickness, call the doctor, always. At other times, a few drops of Fletcher's Castoria.

The doctor often tells you to do just that; and always says Fletcher's. After preparations may be just as safe, just as free from dangerous drugs, but why experiment? Besides, the book on care and feeding of babies that comes with Fletcher's Castoria is worth its weight in gold!

Proposed Memorial to Abraham Lincoln

This is a preliminary drawing for the proposed Indiana memorial to Abraham Lincoln. The building, surrounded by a park, is to be erected at the site where Lincoln lived from the age of seven until he was twenty-one, and where his mother, Nancy Hanks Lincoln, lies buried, among the rolling hills of Spencer county on the Ohio river. The estimated cost of the entire project is $1,250,000.

Old Prison Had 25-Pound Lock

Centerville (Mich.) Calaboose Long Marked by Huge Device.

Centerville, Mich.—The history of the first jail in St. Joseph county with its now legendary 25-pound lock, such an ingenious combination of bolts and wards that the most expert jailbreakers could not pick it and the most desperate jays could not unlock it even with the key, is told by Aloysius McLaughlin of Sturgis in a recent issue of the Michigan History Magazine.

"It was during a meeting of the board of supervisors who were trying to find sufficient excuse for having met—away back in White Pigeon in 1832—that one of them hit upon the happy thought of building a county jail in Centerville," Miss McLaughlin tells. "The board leaped upon the idea."

"To be sure, there were no tenants awaiting the building, but looking at each other in wretched waiting they did not know how soon the call might come for housing a criminal and finding them wanting, and, anyway, all well-regulated communities had jails, and perhaps if their county and one, providence for some one of their number might provide an inmate," the writer relates.

Built in Two Months. "And so they got busy, very busy, and two months afterward the county jail was completed. That is, the contractor said it was completed but contractors seem not to have changed in the last century. For this one, like many of his successors, had left off the most important part."

"The building itself was not bad. It was built of timbers a foot square. It was built in two blocks with an 8-foot space between two stories. It was 14 feet high, with floors 12 and 14 inches thick, doors of 4-inch plank, grained windows and a strong shingle roof."

"But when, with a last gathering of his tools and a final resting of his temporary nails from the nails who had uninvitedly helped the contractor to turn the completed calaboose over to the county, the board of supervisors refused to settle. This contractor had overlooked to place any fastenings on the doors."

"So he started through the village to find a lock or a locksmith and some interested adviser suggested the municipal gunsmith. The business in munitions was dull and the gunsmith halted with delight at the opportunity to give his ingenuity a try. He contrived a magnificent and complicated mechanism, weighing 25 pounds and lock which by sheer weight nearly broke down the door of the jail when quickly fastened to it. It defied any unworking and any entrance to the jail most of the time and rapidly exit at all times, and the old lock is supposed to have terrified more criminals in an early day than did the jail that was fastened to it.

"With the jail finally open for business in July, 1833, the whole county sat on the edge of its chair, jealously waiting to see which village would have some citizen spirited enough to do something conspicuous enough to gain incarceration."

And Centerville Wins. "The honor fell to Centerville, when one of its own, with a full head of hard elder, famed mine host of the tavern. There were neither warrants nor justices of the peace convenient for sending this first offender against the dignity of the great commonwealth to jail, but the sheriff collared him and thrust him into one of the block houses of the new jail, notwithstanding. Afraid to tamper with the gargantuan lock, however, the sheriff left the door open and notified the jailer."

"The jailer, very unused to having prisoners in his jail, forgot all about his transient until noon of the next day, when he hurried over to investigate and found his prisoner gone. He kept his own counsel and began looking up the law to find out whether or not he could in turn be arrested for a trespass of office, but before he had finished his investigation as to his legal status following such a crime of neglect and aiding criminals night came on and with it came a bold knocking at his chamber door."

"Peering out from his window, the jailer saw the outlines of a form that gradually assumed familiar proportions. The battered hat and tattered clothes were not those of a desperado but they certainly were those of the county tip Van Winkle, who was returning with a hangerover."

The Escaped Prisoner. "Stealing down the stairs, the bold jailer obtained a close-up view of his midnight visitor and made certain of his findings. It was he! It was he! He had escaped first and only prisoner. Should he escape again? Not if the county police force knew his business. thought the jailer, and carefully withdrawing from his point of vantage he achieved a flank movement and armed with his authority and a stout shillalah he cornered his inmate in the name of the law."

"Surprised, but not startled, the guilty one turned and held out a friendly hand of good fellowship, as radiation it is found that its mass must be diminishing at the rate of about 20,000,000 tons a minute," he writes. "At the present rate of radiation the total mass of the sun would provide radiation for fifteen million years."

The cause of earthquakes, particularly in the eastern United States, is treated by Dr. William H. Hobbs, geologists generally believe, he says, that such changes in the earth's surface are caused by "the continuous loss into surrounding space of the heat from the earth's interior portions."

"This loss of heat," he continues, "is caused by a reduction of volume, a shrinking of the interior core of the earth, and the outer shell of rock being already cooled to a relatively stable condition must wrinkle as it adjusts itself."

These views are given by Doctor Abbot in one of two articles by him included in 31 papers which form the report. Subjects as diverse as evolution of the stars and the importance of parasites in control of insects are covered.

J. H. Jeans, English mathematician and astronomer, discusses the new outlook in cosmology, saying that "a number of considerations combine to show that the universe is finite."

Briton Says Device Will Eliminate Ice

London.—Cold storage and refrigeration are likely to become obsolete if claims put forward in connection with an invention for preserving fruit, eggs, butter and other foods are justified.

The method, known as "Stablock process," is more a protection than a preservation. It consists of a harmless solution which is said to enable a housewife to keep 300 or 400 eggs for an indefinite period.

The English National Utility Poultry society treated dozens of eggs by coating them with the solution and stored them in an ordinary place. At the end of several months they were as fresh as when first laid.

On two occasions consignments of apples after treatment were sent as deck cargo to Tasmania and they arrived fresh. It is claimed that the process will reduce the cost of imported fruit, as the freightage will be halved, and it is hoped that many tropical fruits will be introduced into England which have never before been imported.

the same time tendering the jailer a grimy two shillings, requesting, with all the exaggerated courtesy of a man doubtful of his reception, that he might have the privilege of again sleeping in the county jail.

"So ended the story of the first prisoner, and the last for several months, although it is not a matter of record how long the Centerville jail was utilized as a hotel by the wayward biber."

The old lock, according to the writer, may have accounted by its capricious ways and puzzling combinations for the death of one Forrest, who set fire to the old jail while a prisoner in 1854 and burned with it, not being able to make his escape from the blazing building.

The old lock, it is related, disappeared with the fire, and years afterward was fished out of the St. Joseph river by some boys at Mendon.

Judge Impounds Coed's Car Till After Game

San Francisco.—Because Peggy Bennett, nineteen, drove her automobile 23 miles on her way through a 15-mile zone on the University of California campus, she will have to obtain other means of transportation to the Stanford California football game November 19. Judge Harry Fletcher in Oakland ordered the girl's car impounded until November 25.

"Please, Judge, make it November 19 because I need the car to go to Stanford for the big game," pleaded Miss Bennett.

"Well, it's just too bad, but I've got to 25 standards," ruled Judge Fletcher.

"This loss of heat," he continues, "is caused by a reduction of volume, a shrinking of the interior core of the earth, and the outer shell of rock being already cooled to a relatively stable condition must wrinkle as it adjusts itself."

The New Woman

Governor Weeks of Vermont, who designed the 4 by 6-foot birthday card sent to President Coolidge in South Dakota, has the Vermonters' sturdy hatred of ultra-modern fashions and customs.

At a Montpelier reception a banker nodded in the direction of a New York lady in a very short skirt who sat with her knees crossed smoking a cigarette in a long tube.

"A new woman, I suppose," he said. Governor Weeks glanced at the lady and observed: "I should say an old woman repainted."

Slaughter of Whales

Has Brought Protest. Wholesale slaughter of whales by Norwegian fleets in the Ross sea is being protested by naturalists and scientists of Australia and New Zealand, who say that continuation of the practice will mean the extinction of whales.

A proposal, to call an international convention to regulate the killing is being considered. It is reported that two Norwegian ships operating from Stewart Island in the Ross sea in the latter part of 1926 and the early months of 1927 captured 700 whales, yielding $2,500,000 worth of oil, and that another ship, with Holari as its base, took about 50,000 barrels of whale oil to Norway.

It is estimated that 1,500 whales were killed in the last year. The territory is under the jurisdiction of New Zealand, which receives a royalty on the oil.

FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

L. A. Edwards, Pastor

In 1879 service of worship by the pastor, subject, "A Sure Foundation."

New England has during the past few days been visited by the most devastating flood in its history. Buildings that have withstood great storms have been swept away and washed like egg shells, while others are being washed away by the onslaughts of wind and waves.

Had the Foundation upon which they rested anything to do with the results? Upon what does this superstructure that we call our life rest? Have we any assurance of fair weather? If the storms beat and the floods come will our building stand?

These questions and some others will be discussed in the sermon next Sunday morning.

We invite you to come and worship with us.

That's Not Music!

Nor is the noise of a worn through steel tire chain, pounding against a fender.

And even when the cross links are in good condition, the old noisy swish and clatter isn't exactly sweet to the ear.

The Goodyear Rubber Chain is an agreeable change from this noise.

You can put on a set and forget all about them, except the assurance of safety which they give. Come in and get a set. You'll be glad.

OUTLAWING CONGRESS

The decision of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in Philadelphia in that the question of the existence of the Senate Committee known as the "Red Squad Fund Committee" must be decided by the Senate and not by the courts is regarded in Washington as good law and excellent common sense. The Senate and the House of Representatives have transacted lots of business through committees during the intermissions of Congress in past years. The custom has been so well established and so much in the interest of the public that it does not need to be defended.

It has been very convenient for politicians such as they have in Pennsylvania and Illinois to seek to defeat an investigation on the ground that a committee of Congress was proceeding improperly during a recess, or between sessions.

This sort of filibustering for the purpose of outlawing Congress was originated when Fall, Doherty and Sinclair were being "bumped off" in Senate hearings.

The obstructionists have gained a little time by their methods, but the chances are that they will "pay for their points" a little later on. When Congress meets it will promptly and definitely define the authority of its committees and behind all such obstructive schemes as who try to slow down the machinery of Government.

UNFAIR BUSINESS

The Federal Trade Commission has recently put a crimp in a lot of methods of unfair business.

A Chicago firm that has been misbranding and selling and advertising A. C. Spark Plugs is defending itself in hearings now being held.

The use of the term "Philippine Mahogany" in selling and advertising mahogany products that are not from the pure mahogany tree has been forbidden. One of the companies complained against is making a test case and will take it to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

Certain American manufacturers who label and sell their home-made products, and brand them as made in England, will have to stop the practice.

The Royal Baking Powder Company and the Calumet Baking Powder Company are still being investigated as to their trade methods. It is a continuation of their quarrel which has lasted more than a decade.

A certain class of tailors who sell clothes for clothing purporting to come from their "mills" have been ordered to stop the practice. They are now being investigated as to their trade methods. It is a continuation of their quarrel which has lasted more than a decade.
